

JANUARY COURT SENTENCES

VALENTINE SENTENCED TO EIGHT MONTHS IN JAIL.

Surety of Peace Cases Heard and Disposed of—Other Business Transacted.

On Saturday last the following business was transacted in the courts:

Charles Brown, said to be a Cuban, who had been in jail two months and eleven days, for disorderly conduct, was discharged with the thanks of the Court, for his valuable testimony in the case of Carson Valentine, negro, convicted of living in adultery with the white girl, Cook.

Valentine was sentenced to eight months in the county jail, the term being fixed so that it would not terminate in the winter, and the defendant have a chance to get at some work before winter.

S. A. Carpenter, alias R. F. Carpenter, pleaded guilty to the forgery of a check on the First National Bank of Gettysburg, purporting to be drawn by R. T. Little of Seven Stars, for $25.00, and presented to Funkhouser & Sachs, on which the prisoner obtained goods of the value of $12.50 and the balance in money. The prisoner said he was seventeen in last December, that his father was not living with his mother, she residing in Waynesboro. The case was continued so that further information could be obtained from the mother or other sources. Judge Swope seemed to think that the Reformatory was the proper place for the young man. He certainly needs moral training.

Two sureties of the peace cases from York Springs, were heard, which made the air thick with profanity and horrible threats. The one was against Kate Myers, at the prosecution of Rosie Cleaver, the other against Kate's husband, Parker Myers, at the prosecution of Rosie Cleaver's husband, Lewis Cleaver. The parties were neighbors, but not at all neighborly. Kate Myers was held in recognizance in $200 to keep the peace toward Rosie Cleaver and pay the costs of prosecution. In the other case the prosecution was dismissed and the two husbands sentenced each to pay one-half of the costs of prosecution.

The case against John Frank Shultz, charged by his wife with desertion, was heard. The parties live in Franklin township, were married thirteen years ago and have four children living, the mother having the youngest with her, two months old. The husband alleged that a boarder in the family had made the trouble between himself and his wife. The Court could not credit the most serious charge made by the husband of his wife's adultery with the boarder, and the defendant was sentenced to pay $3.00 per week for the maintenance of his wife and children. A proceeding in divorce had been instituted by the husband and George M. Walter, Esq., was appointed commissioner to take testimony.

The complaint instituted by Chas. H. Wilson, Esq., against William Reed for neglect of his children, was heard, the father pleading guilty. Miss Nettie Swartz, a deaconess of the Methodist Church, whose province it was to see after the poor and neglected, in rather a dramatic way, told the Court of how she had been employed and that she had been doing some evangelistic work in the Pigeon Hills and had gone to the premises of the defendant, his wife still living, but having died whilst Miss Swartz was there. She learned that the father was brutal, among other things, had given beer to his children, they had lived not far from the tavern in Berwick township. Reed was discharged upon surrendering to the Directors of the Poor, his children, who will find good homes for them.

In the case, charging Elmer Toddes with furnishing whiskey, the plea of guilty was withdrawn and the case goes over for trial next Court.

The widow's list of property elected by Jane C. Wherley, widow of David Wherley, deceased, was approved nisi.

A petition was presented for the appointment of viewers of public road in Butler township on petition of Harry L. Slaybaugh and others. There has been two sets of viewers for the same road, previously, and their reports set aside.

Sarah M. Leister, guardian of Richard Leister, on her own petition, was discharged and the Citizens' Trust Company of Gettysburg, appointed in her stead.

P. A. T. Bowers, Esq., assignee estate of Thomas S. Norwood and wife, reported a sale of the real estate, to Harry E. Fidler, for $1200, which was confirmed.

Harry T. Schriver of Gettysburg was granted a divorce from his wife, Nellie E. Schriver, on the ground of desertion.

J. Donald Swope, Esq., was appointed commissioner to take testimony in divorce case of Mary Louisa Jacobs vs. George W. Jacobs.

An alias subpoena in divorce was awarded in case of Herman Kappes vs. Grace E. Kappes.

An order of sale was awarded to William Hersh, assignee of Jeremiah Shoemaker, deceased. The property is advertised in another column.

Citizens of Cumberland and Mt. Joy township presented a petition for a view of bridge site over Rock Creek on road running from Taneytown road near Round Top to Baltimore pike at the White Church. The Court said viewers would be appointed at an early date.

Charles C. Carbaugh, administrator of estate of Amelia Carbaugh, deceased, and executor of will of Lewis Carbaugh, of Union township, was discharged upon his own petition, the shares of $16.95 of each of two minor children, to be paid into Court.

J. L. Williams, Esq., assignee of estate of Mrs. Emma C. Johns obtained an order, allowing a credit of six months for sales of articles of personal property, over $5.00.

A petition of citizens of Mt. Pleasant township, praying that the township may be divided into two or more election districts, was presented and filed. A petition of supervisors of Highland township, was presented, setting out that Harry Singley, a supervisor, had resigned. The Court appointed Jacob L. Herter supervisor to fill vacancy.

Upon petition of the supervisors of Straban township an order was made for the alteration of about 475 feet of the public road leading from Gettysburg to Hunterstown at the intersection of the said road with the Chambersburg road at land of Ambrose Tate and substituting roadway from the Gettysburg road as it descends the last hill, continuing on to the Chambersburg road and not making the turn it does half way down the hill. The damages were not to exceed $225.

Successful Band Fair.

The fair and festival of the Citizens' Band of Gettysburg on last Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings proved a big success. The donations of cakes and other articles were liberal and numerous. A number of articles of value were also donated, sideboard, serving table, horse blanket, wash machine, rocking chair, three umbrellas, three half tons of coal, shoes, pants and vest pattern, dozen photos, ring, center piece and gas iron. Everything was disposed of at the close of the fair Saturday night.

The Forney Garage made an ideal place in which to hold the fair. Well heated and lighted and both heat and light were donated, as well as the garage; there was plenty of room for everybody. On Friday and Saturday evenings an excellent supper of chicken and waffles was served and liberally patronized.

The receipts on Wednesday evening approximated $44, on Thursday $66, on Friday $113, and on Saturday not quite $400, the total receipts amounting to $611.56. There were expenses of ice cream, chickens, oysters, etc., aggregating about $150, so that the Band boys will clear about $460.

The Band has been in need for years of a bass horn and new cymbals and it has been the wish of the Band to get the same from proceeds of fair and thus complete the refurnishing of Band with good instruments. The Band will then be in first class shape. These new instruments will cost about $175. A number of the instruments have been recently repaired at an outlay of $20. The band rooms have been fixed up and they needed it very badly, and this involved an outlay of $20. There is a debt of about $75 for money borrowed and of $20 to leader, so that when all obligations have been settled and the new instruments purchased there will be about $150 in the treasury for salary of leader at $20 per month. The Band should obtain some engagements this year which should prove profitable to their treasury, so that the future is bright for this town organization.

Wm. Kotz of Grand Rapids, Mich., arrived on Monday and secured a position in the Furniture Factory, and has joined the Band. The prospects are good for securing several additional members in the same way.

TOWN'S CELEBRATION NEEDS

GREAT CITIES ALWAYS GIVEN HELP TO CARE FOR CROWDS.

Gettysburg Faces a Gigantic Crowd Without Any Help Being Yet Extended.

In the preparations for the great celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, the town of Gettysburg has up to the present time received no adequate consideration as to its needs and how they should be met in caring for the thousands upon thousands of the general public beyond its capacity to entertain. The commission has been presented with the facts and has been appealed to again and again but the chairman of the commission has deliberately sidetracked and prevented consideration of this subject matter. Every question of the kind is relegated to a later date. This is a crying injustice to the town and might result in putting the town in a most unprepared condition.

Gettysburg has a reputation for taking care of more people than any other community of its size in the country, and will unquestionably go to the limit of its capacity in doing the trick again in 1913 but there are things Gettysburg can not do and won't be able to do after the capacity has been exhausted and no other provision made by those responsible for such a situation.

The incapacity and absurdity of the attitude of the chairman of the commission was well illustrated in the following incident. He was asked at one of the meetings what would be done with the women and children going to Gettysburg. He had no answer at the time. The next time he came to Gettysburg he unloaded this very pertinent responsibility by making the absurd remark that Gettysburg would have to take care of the women and children.

Preparations as now planned are entirely inadequate to meet the most important question of what provision will be made for the companions of the veterans. The sweethearts of Civil War days, now life long companions, their daughters and grandchildren have not been given a thought or care. Will veterans have to desert these dear companions, consigning them to the tender mercies of a packed town while the veteran is cared for in the U. S. Camp? Such a plan involves a fearful confusion and loss of time each day in the search of each for their companions. Every veteran coming with his companions, should be able to take them to the camp where he is cared for, where they can be together. If present legislation does not make this possible then the sooner additional authority is obtained the better—that is—if the purpose is to serve the veterans and those dearest to them who may accompany them back to Gettysburg.

Gettysburg will not be able to take care of all the women and children and the great throng already engaging every available room in the town. Gettysburg is a town of but 4,000 souls living in about one thousand dwellings and when these have been exhausted its capacity to care for people is at an end, unless the state makes possible further provision.

The history of other great gatherings has been available to the commission and others responsible for the preparations for the celebration, but this history seems to have been overlooked, and should still admonish that Gettysburg is entitled to consideration it has not yet received.

The Grand Army National encampment each year brings together about 30,000 veterans and thousands of other visitors. These figures are small alongside of those used in connection with those going to attend the Gettysburg celebration. Yet substantial help is offered year after year to great cities for the entertainment of 30,000 G. A. R. veterans.

When the encampment was held at Boston several years ago the State of Massachusetts voted $50,000 and the city of Boston $25,000 for the entertainment, and this notwithstanding that Boston is a city of great wealth with a population of 679,000.

When the encampment met at Rochester, a city of over 200,000 inhabitants, $55,000 was appropriated to it by New York State.

When Saratoga, a town of 15,000 people, three times the size of Gettysburg, and specially built for the entertainment of great gatherings took upon itself to take care of the G. A. R. a much smaller concourse than will be assembled at Gettysburg, New York State appropriated to Saratoga $35,000.

The recent encampment at Los Angeles, a city of over 3,000,000 souls and of enormous wealth, was a comparatively small affair alongside of other encampments, yet the State of California gave $25,000 and the city $15,000 for its entertainment.

Why an appropriation of $20,000 is made by Congress every fourth year for the expenses of a one-day inauguration at Washington and $2,000 is specially authorized to be spent in public comfort stations.

The G. A. R. it is said will go the week after the Gettysburg celebration to either Philadelphia or Brooklyn, and General Wagner declared the other day if it went to Philadelphia, that city of merchant princes and of business men of great wealth, would have to ask the Legislature for an appropriation of $25,000 to take care of it.

Contemplate the absurdity in the face of these facts of making no direct provision for Gettysburg to take care of a concourse of people alongside of which the Grand Army of the Republic national encampment will look small.

would be unjust to the town and unjust to the people who would come here and have a right to come here to participate in the great peace celebration of the nation.

It is no answer that State and Nation have made appropriations, the greater part for physical preparations for veterans alone. What money remains in the commission's hands will go to veteran transportation and expenses of the commission. There is not a cent in sight as far as can be seen for Gettysburg to take care of the people through increased accommodations.

The town will only be able to take care of 15,000 visitors and this provided the work is thoroughly and systematically done. A bureau should be established in town and as a great part of its work will be for veterans, finding quarters in the town, the maintenance of bureau should fall upon the State. The most systematic method of caring for the greatest number would be by such a bureau with a retinue of employees keeping themselves in touch with every home so that no lodging place, be escaped and by preparing for use public places like school houses, court house, etc.

An appropriation for Gettysburg would make possible the bringing to Gettysburg of the N. G. P. tentage and hundreds of other tents, everything in the shape of shelter to be had and with it, thousands of cots, vastly increasing the capacity of the town to care for visitors and it will be needed for the records of the railroads are the proof for the assertion that if 40,000 veterans are brought to this place for the celebration, there will be 40,000 more of the general public here and such a crowd can not be taken care of in the town and only a liberal appropriation to the town would make possible adequate provision for such a throng.

Policing, hospital services and lavatories as already promised do not adequately cover the needs of the town. Additional preparations for the entertainment of a much greater number, comfort stations, drinking fountains, information bureaus and many other details must be looked after if the town and its coming throng of visitors shall receive the just consideration to which they are entitled. In the face of the history of great gatherings the surprise is that appropriations are not extended to the town unsolicited. The shame of the situation is to have the absurd chairman loudly asserting more money must be had from the State of Pennsylvania for the commission but not one cent for Gettysburg.

There should be a special appropriation by the Legislature at Harrisburg of $20,000 for the needs of the town and if it was thought best the expenditure could be made through the hands and with the approval of the Adjutant General. This would prevent much suffering at Gettysburg in 1913 and if not done the fault will be at the doors of the commission and its chairman.

Death of the Lincoln Highway.

The Lincoln Highway as a memorial to President Lincoln was killed in the House of Representatives on last Wednesday. The exact fashion in which the killing was done is as follows: The concurrent resolution was taken up shortly after the House convened and it was agreed to devote four hours of talk to the subject. The Library Committee had favorably reported the Greek Temple in Potomac Park. The talk was somewhat general. One congressman reviewed the history of legislation in favor of Lincoln monuments or erection and that nothing adequate to the subject had yet been erected. Some favored the Greek Temple, one addressed himself to the reasons why a great hall or amphitheatre would not be a better memorial. Congressman Borland of Missouri made the chief speech in favor of the Highway and his speech in full will be found on the second page.

At the conclusion of the debate Mr. Borland moved that the resolution be recommitted to the Committee on Library and on that question the vote was 31 yeas and 153 nays. When Mr. Borland raised a point of no quorum 193 members were counted present. Then on the question whether the concurrent motion, authorizing the erection of the $2,000,000 Greek Temple should pass the motion was declared to have passed and an effort to have yeas and nays recorded came too late, so that the identity of the particular friends of the Highway to Gettysburg is not a matter of record.

Life Imprisonment.

Warren Sanders has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of his wife and mother-in-law at Ashton, Ill., last August. The story of the shooting was given in our columns at the time. There was some trouble over the possession of a child that the father was to have on Saturdays and Sundays. He confessed to the killing and alleged he had been attacked before shooting. The jailer testified to run on nose and bruise on head and the court being led to believe that these evidences of attack on man took away the element of premeditation, sentenced him for life to Joliet.

Lincoln Way Not Reached.

The resolution for a Greek Temple was not reached last Wednesday in the House of Representatives. An all-day wrangle over a Western township bill prevented the consideration of the Lincoln Memorial resolution. Through out the session on last Wednesday all the Maryland congressmen were on the floor, making speeches on the Western township bill. Other advocates of the highway joined in the talking so that the end of the Western township bill was reached and will be the first order of business ahead of the Lincoln Memorial to-day. "Calendar Wednesday." It is believed that the longer consideration of the Lincoln memorial can be delayed, the stronger will become the highway forces.

President Taft took a hand last Wednesday by having a conference with 30 Republican members at the White House and earnestly expressing in favor of the Greek Temple. He deplored a defeat of that memorial and said he had no objections to the construction of the highway to Gettysburg but pushed that away off in the dim future. The dream of Senator Cullum to see some final action on a Lincoln memorial before he retired to private life was worked by President Taft for all possible effect.

On Tuesday evening of last week a good sized gathering of residents of Washington held a meeting in the National Rifles' Armory and protested against the Greek Temple in the "mud flats of the Potomac" and strongly endorsed the highway to Gettysburg. At this meeting Mr. Berghum, who modeled the wonderful head of Lincoln that now stands in the Rotunda of the Capitol, made the startling charge that the commission which selected the Greek Temple plan was "packed." He said there were three architects on it and the scheme was "an empty, characterless, featureless pile of $2,000,000 in marble."

Gen. Sherwood of Ohio, strongly endorsed the highway and promised to vote for it. Lewis B. Shoemaker of Washington, presided over the meeting and declared that he hoped the highway would be constructed and that in the future development of the American national capital each State would erect on the sides of the memorial way beautiful buildings in which to exhibit their works of art and science.

Congressman Borland, who represents the famous good roads district of Missouri, characterized the Greek temple plan as a "hackneyed form of architecture" with "no appropriate or historic association as a memorial to Abraham Lincoln." He charged that the Fine Arts Commission, which originated and recommended the Greek temple idea, was "attempting to turn everything in Washington into a form of Greek temple construction."

"The mall from the Capitol to the Washington Monument," he said, "is to be lined on both sides with huge buildings of the same Greek temple pattern to be used by the Department of Justice, the Department of Labor and Commerce, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of the Interior, etc."

"It will be absurd and inappropriate to place Abraham Lincoln, the man of the masses, in a Greek temple. Washington in a Roman toga and Lincoln in a Greek temple are twin artistic follies. This Greek temple will be empty and will be called a memorial to Lincoln. There will be nothing in it but a heroic statue of Lincoln in a brand-new suit of clothes. A man dressed in nineteenth century clothes, enshrined in a Greek temple, may not strike the Fine Arts Commission as absurd, but it will certainly have that effect upon the ordinary visitor."

"On the other hand I am strongly in favor of the Lincoln memorial highway. There is no point within easy reach of Washington, which is so inseparably connected with the name and fame of Lincoln as the battlefield of Gettysburg. Such a boulevard would be traveled by every foreign tourist, and every patriotic American and every American schoolboy who had the opportunity."

"The greatest need of America to-day is to open up our country to its own people. We are sending every year thousands of American dollars to the Old World. We cannot show them copies of castles and temples, but we can show them scenes graced by wondrous natural beauties, vital with sentiments of American national life and gladdening with the great tragedies of American history."

"Such a boulevard would become the nation's pride. It would lead from the nation's capital to its greatest battlefield, that field which is immortalized not only by the burning words of Lincoln but by the dauntless heroism of the citizen soldiers of America; that field where for three long days, under the burning July sun, those two mighty armies hurled themselves against each other and proved to themselves and to all the world that they were one in race, one in courage and one in destiny."

On Friday there was a heated discussion in the House in which there were allegations of filibustering to prevent the consideration of the Greek temple resolution from being reached. The accusation of filibustering was denied and it looked as though the course of events was being shaped so that the Lincoln memorial would be reached this week.

Cannon joined the forces against the highway, notwithstanding his representations at one time that he would be for the highway as against a monument down in the Tenderloin and beside a brewery. In changing front he let go some Cannon hot air that "it is a profanation of that great man's name when it is proposed to use it in connection with a road's project."

The Highway deserves to win and if it wins it will be on account of the righteousness of its cause. A packed decision, Mr. Root throwing out ugly suggestions, resorting to the working of influence and for reasons immaterial to the question, should not be allowed to win and certainly speaks the character of the opposition.

Democrats Have Half U. S. Senate. Democratic control of the next Senate became a certainty last week when John K. Shields was elected Senator from Tennessee, but the minimum Democratic strength is 48, exactly one-half of the membership of the Senate.

Delaware could add another vote to the party hold on the Senate but four members have chosen to deadlock the situation there.

The control of the Senate, if no further Democratic additions are made, will be so narrow as to make action on many contested problems and on tariff legislation a matter of constant doubt. With Vice President Marshall's vote to rely upon in the case of a tie, the Democrats will have control of the Senate organization and of general Senate affairs.

It is recognized that on many tariff questions and on other matters of general legislation divisions within the party after March 4 may reduce the Democratic majority to the vanishing point.

Illinois, New Hampshire, West Virginia and Wyoming are being watched in the hope that one or more Democratic Senators may be added from one of these States.

Fire Co. Enjoys Banquet. The Gettysburg Fire Company, members, friends and ladies to number of 165 heartily enjoyed the annual banquet held on last Thursday evening in the O. of A. Hall. The supper of chicken, oysters and other good things was well served and thoroughly enjoyed. The Gettysburg Orchestra furnished the music and Wm. McSherry, Esq., John E. Pitzer and others made speeches.

Medals for Gettysburg Survivors. Senator O'Gorman of New York has introduced a resolution in Congress to award a medal to every survivor of the battle of Gettysburg upon the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary in July. This was the greatest and most decisive battle of the whole war, a hard-fought contest in which the Union forces came out with victory. The proposal of Senator O'Gorman will doubtless meet with very general popular favor all over the country.

Gun Accident.

A gun accident happened last Saturday in East Berlin. Robert Weaver and Charles Sell went to the creek to shoot ducks. They saw one but did not get it. Sell rested his gun in his hands and Weaver walked away about 35 or 40 feet. In some accidental way that Sell cannot exactly tell his gun went off and the load struck Weaver's right arm between shoulder and elbow. The gun was loaded with No. 8 shot and as many as 30 or 40 shot it is thought entered the arm, a few in his body. Dr. Lau was summoned and took out 17 shot and dressed the wound and Weaver is getting along as well as can be expected. Mr. Weaver makes his home with his uncle, Samuel Jacobs.

A BLOOD MEDICINE WITHOUT ALCOHOL.

Recently it has been definitely proven by experiments on animals that alcohol lowers the germicidal power of the body and that alcohol paralyzes the white cor- puscles of the blood and renders them unable to take up and destroy disease germs. Disease germs cause the death of over one-half of the human race.

A blood medicine, made entirely without alcohol, which is a pure glyceric ex- tract of roots, such as Bloodroot, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Mandrake and Stone root, has been extensively sold by druggists for the past forty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

Mrs. Hayes.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, and a physician of large experience and practice, was the first to make up an ALTERNATIVE EXTRACT of roots, without a particle of alcohol or narcotic.

"It is with the greatest pleasure, that I write to let you know of the great benefit I received from the use of your medicines and self-treatment at home," writes Mrs. Wm. Hayes, of Ladysmith, B. C. "I suf- fered for three years from a running sore. Consulted four doctors but they failed to mend or give relief. Finally I was told I was in consump- tion and would have to consult a specialist concerning my ear, that the dead bone must be cut out before the wound would heal. A kind friend advised me to write to Dr. Pierce, which I did, and after seven months' use of the treatment the sore is healed, and I enjoy better health than I ever did. I dressed the wound with Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve and took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' for my troubles. I shall always recommend your medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate liver and bowels.

THE FEBRUARY MAGAZINES

PINKERTON'S STORY OF FIRST ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF LINCOLN

How City Parks Have Been Made to Pay through Refectory—Good Nature in Cartoons.

The AMERICAN Magazine in its new form has certainly given the Maga- zine world something unique and most attractive. The colored picture work and the larger illustrations give it a distinctive and winning character- istic. The change has not been a mistake but a distinct gain.

Lincoln Story

In the February AMERICAN Maga- zine appears Allan Pinkerton's un- published story of the first attempt on the life of Abraham Lincoln. It is contained in a letter which Pinkerton, the famous detective, wrote in 1866, but which has never before been pub- lished. Pinkerton describes vividly how a plot had been laid to kill Lin- coln in Baltimore on his way to Washington and how he made the plans to avert the disaster. He ac- companied Lincoln from Philadel- phia to Washington. Lincoln was notified in Philadelphia of the danger that had been discovered and he put himself absolutely in Pinkerton's hands. Referring to Pinkerton's in- terview with Lincoln in Philadelphia, Pinkerton says in his letter:—

"Undoubtedly this interview made a deep impression on Mr. Lincoln: for it will be remembered that the next morning, when he ran the Union flag up the staff over Independence Hall, in a burst of patriotic fervor, he exclaimed: 'Now, my friends, can this country be saved upon this basis? [The promise of equal rights in the Declaration of Independence.] If it can, I will consider myself one of the happiest men in the world if I can help to save it. If it cannot be saved upon that principle, it will be truly awful. But if this country cannot be saved without giving up that princi- ple, I was about to say, I would rather be assassinated on this spot than to surrender it.'"

Making City Parks Pay.

In SUBURBAN LIFE for February, George A. Parker, Superintendent of Parks, Hartford, Conn., discusses the question of making our city parks self supporting. He tells of his experience in conducting the refectory in Eliza- beth Park, Hartford:—

"I started in with the assumption that there should be no profit," says he, "that the refectory was truly park service, and that all money received should go back into that service. I improved the quality of the supplies, increased the quantity, added to the wages of the waiters, doubled the pay of the head-waiter, and employed a manager. I also made certain re- strictions as to the use of the service, and thought I had done everything necessary to eliminate all possible profit. Imagine my surprise at the end of the year when the profits, even under these conditions, were some- thing over $1,200!"

The American Woman.

In the February WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION John Drew, the celebrated actor, writes a most interesting article entitled "What I Think of the Ameri- can Woman." Following is an ex- tract:—

"Because a few enthusiasts and ex- tremists have taken to interrupting public speakers and getting them- selves arrested is no sign that Amer- ica is entering upon an era of political heckling and window-smashing. The American woman knows that all this is picturesque — but unnecessary. When she wants the ballot she will get it in her own dignified ways, and it will carry with it the blessing of her husband, her brother, her sweetheart, and the admonition to go along and do better with it than he has done."

The following paragraph is taken from a story by Justus Miles Forman in the February "Woman's Home Companion":—

"The women of New Zealand have had full suffrage since 1893, of Aus- tralia since 1902, of Finland since 1905, in Norway three hundred thou- sand of them have full parliamentary suffrage, and that it is expected to be made universal in that country with- in a year or two. In Denmark, as in Ireland, women vote for all officers except members of parliament, and they have municipal suffrage in any quan- tity of places."

The Wonderful Growth of the Auto- mobile Industry

Fifteen years ago the automobile was only a traveller's tale and the hobby of a few crack-brained experi- ments. Five years ago the automobile factories of the United States produced about 100,000 cars. This year about 500,000 cars will be built, whose total value will exceed $600,000,000. One city alone will produce 300,000 cars—one factory, 200,000.

In 1905 the lowest practical price for an automobile was $900; today a better one costs but $600. Cars equal to those costing $1,500 and $2,000 five years ago, cost $1,200 and $1,500 today; and $900 buys a car better than the $1,200 car of the earlier date.

In 1905 about 500,000 of our citizens owned automobiles; before summer there will be an automobile for every 100 persons. In 1905 our export motor business was not worth mentioning. Last year it exceeded $25,000,000.

Five years ago this country had but a sprinkling of motor-trucks. They were poorly built; their advantages were doubtful; the only thing certain was the enormous latent demand. Today there are some 40,000 motor trucks giving satisfaction to 18,000 owners, and the percentage of growth in this business exceeds that in the pleasure-car field.

Today the invested capital in the automobile business in this country alone rivals that of the United States Steel Corporation.

Most of the employees are skilled, most of them work in modern, whole- some factories, and all are well paid. Five years ago the automobile was a transcendent plaything—thrilling, seductive, desperately expensive. Its oldest devotees could view with pati- ence neither abstinence from its charms nor the bills which followed surrender. Today the harrowing al- ternative is mitigated at both ends. The bills are less and some of the ex- citement has worn off. Neighbor Brown, who sensibly refused to mort- gage his house to buy a car in 1903, is now piling his family into a smart little black-and-red car, and is starting out on a four-day run to the Water Gap and return. And you know that he can do it now without the mort- gage. — From "The Automobile and Its Mission," by Herbert Ladd Towle, in the February SCRIBNER.

Men Who are "Opening Up" Alaska.

The following is an extract from Bel- more Browne's The Conquest of Mt McKinley, begun in the February OUTING:—

Came the call of a dog driver and black specks that grew into two men riding empty sleds, who drew aside to let us pass while we swapped the news of the trail. They were prospectors freighting to Broad Pass, they said, three of them; two brothers by the name of Wells and their partner, Col- fee.

These men represented the best type of the Alaskan prospector. Freight- ing their supplies in the winter time, the spring "break-up" would find them in some distant range of the in- terior. Here they would hold their cabin, prospecting and trapping for a year or more, and eking out their food supply with the aid of rifle and fish line. When their food was gone they would raft down some wilderness river, sell their furs and skins at a frontier post and outfit for another venture. Finding good quartz pros- pects near the Alaskan Range they were freighting in a two-years' outfit counting on "the coming of the rail- road" to make their embryonic mines valuable. This is the type of man that is "opening up" Alaska.

Fly Should be Swatted Twice.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears the following:—

"We are told to 'swat' the fly. It's not giving the fly his deserts. We should be told to swat him twice, to be sure he's dead and that he remains dead. We don't treat him fairly as to titles. We call him only the ty- phoid fly, when his right name is the typhoid, tuberculosis, cholera, dysen- tery, cerebro spinal meningitis, con- tagious ophthalmia, diphtheria and other diseases fly."

"He starts out alone at the begin- ning of the season, and at the end his family is increased to 7,000,000 disease spreading grown-ups. He carries as many as 5,000,000 bacteria on the out- side of his body, and a good many on the inside."

"His birthplace is the exposed man- ure-heap and outhouse, and were filth unknown upon the earth the domestic fly would not and could not exist."

"He visits the unscreamed stable and is more than attentive to the tubercu- lous cow, and, for a change, flies out and rests and suns himself on the milk-utensils put in the sun to drain, air and dry. This exposure of un- screened milk cans and pails to the fatal disease-breeding flies is univer- sal, and they, when so exposed, under go contamination, and the milk be- comes infected."

Pennsylvania as a Fruit State.

A student in Indiana wrote to Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harris- burg, asking for information concern- ing the fruit growing sections of Pen- nsylvania, saying that he would like to locate in this State and go into the busi- ness of fruit growing. The reply is not only of interest to all such inquir- ers, but is characteristic of State Zoolo- gists Surface in standing for the proper advancement of all this Great State.

"Up until two or three years ago most of us had the idea that there were certain sections of this State that could be called fruit growing sections, and others were something else. Now it is definitely proven, chiefly by dem- onstration work of the Division of Zoology of the Department of Agricul- ture, that absolutely every part of this State is well adapted to the growing of some varieties."

"In general, there are two distinct regions: the first of which is the south- ern and lowland region, wherein cer- tain varieties like the Jonathan, Smokehouse, York Imperial, Paragon, Mother and others may reach their best perfection, and which do not do so well in the northern or mountainous re- gions. In the latter such varieties as the Gravenstein, King, Greening, Northern Spy and Baldwin are con- spicuously successful, while these in turn do not do so well in the former regions. Yet throughout the State certain varieties are generally adapted. Among these are such as the Yellow Transparent, Maiden Blush, Summer Rambo, Grimes Golden, Rome Beauty Stayman, Winesap and others that might be mentioned. It has certainly been proven in the last two or three years that in all parts of Pennsylvania are fruit-growing regions, if one will use care to plant any one or more of one-half dozen different varieties."

not only keeps cold out, but conserves body-warmth; body-fat serves the same purpose, it enables us to resist unsettled elements and serves as the great source of our body-heat. Greater body-warmth means richer blood, more fat, not obesity but fat which the body consumes for warmth, vitality, resistance-power—as a furnace consumes coal for heat—Scott's Emulsion does this.

A teaspoonful after each meal makes body-warmth—healthy, active blood—sharpens the appetite and makes all good food do good.

It drives out and keeps out colds by raising endurance-power and creating strength.

Reject substitutes for SCOTT'S. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 12-61

"Small fruits do well in all parts of the State, if given proper attention. Plums and pears do well in all coun- ties of the State, and, except in such unusual seasons as we experienced last winter, we may justifiably expect fine results from peaches and quinces."

"Of course, there are individual loca- tions or sites in each county which are more adapted to satisfactory fruit pro- duction, as it is important for one to be able to select good rich and deep soil with fair soil drainage, and eleva- tion of slope with good air drainage. In the selection of a site with regard to immediate surroundings the nature of the soil is more important than is the mere choosing of any one general region in the State. Above all else, a knowledge of the subject of horticul- ture is necessary. There has been an immense rush toward extensive plant- ing, particularly in commercial plant- ing in this State. Many persons en- gaged in some other business or pro- fession have apparently thought it possible to plant an orchard on a hill- side or elsewhere, and in a few years find themselves wealthy from its in- come. This idea of the ease with which good fruits can grow and profits be made will be sure to lead to con- siderable disappointment, and those who learned the subject and are will- ing to work hard and keep up with the progress of the times will succeed."

"There is no doubt about the high quality of Pennsylvania fruits when the right varieties are grown. They can be put up against any produced elsewhere in the world, and will hold their own on every point of color, size, flavor, productiveness and other features. There is a general demand for home-grown fruits, as these are preferred before imported fruits, and consumers are coming to learn more and more the value of the home pro- duct, and thus buy it and use it."

"Pennsylvania is an empire in her- self. Her industries of manufacture, mining, transportation and agricul- ture, the latter embracing horticulture, dairying and stock raising, general farming and trucking are so develop- ed that each is helpful to the other to a remarkable extent. This is a coun- try of schools, churches and homes. We think there is no need of taking good money to the far West or else- where, in order to find an opportunity for investment in profitable lines. The man who studies and hustles can find all necessary opportunities for suc- cess."

"If you need detailed information along the line of any industry of this State, particularly in regard to agri- culture or fruit growing, I shall be pleased to aid you in procuring it."

THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL

THE GREEK TEMPLE SELECTED
IN PLACE OF HIGHWAY.Speech of Congressman Borland of Missouri in Favor of the Way

"Mr. Speaker, the fame of Abraham Lincoln is a growing one. Forty-seven years after his death his fame is greater today among his compatriots than ever before. Monuments have been built to Abraham Lincoln beginning almost with the time of his unhappy decease, and as years go by these monuments have been discarded by the American people as utterly inappropriate and insufficient to express the profound national appreciation of the wondrous character of Abraham Lincoln.

It was not that he was a ruthless conqueror, it was not that he was a pagan philosopher, it was not that he was a Lorenzo di Medici, patron of the fine arts, but that he was a great, proud student of human nature, with a sympathetic heart that beat in unison with the humblest citizen of his native land.

And as that impression has gone forth throughout all the rank and file of American citizenship, the monument to Lincoln's fame has gained an enduring foundation which will raise it to the eternal skies.

With all due respect to this Lincoln Commission, no one is prepared to admit that they have spoken the final word for the preservation of Lincoln's fame. It would not have been possible before the present time to secure an appropriation of $2,000,000 to commemorate any American except Washington. These other monuments have cost trifling sums in comparison, but they are discarded as utterly inadequate for the purpose. Washington contains Lincoln monuments, one at the courthouse and one on Lincoln Square. There is no dearth of Lincoln monuments, big and little, but they have not commanded the love and veneration of the American people as being expressive of the American ideal of Lincoln.

I am opposed to this Greek temple on one hand and I am in favor of the highway on the other. My views are simply stated: First, I believe the Greek temple is wholly inappropriate and will be so deemed by the American people. Second, I believe that the highway is nearer to a perpetual monument of Lincoln, nearer to expressing the epoch of American history, than any other form of memorial capable in or about the National Capital.

When this committee was chosen for the task of spending $2,000,000 of the people's money for a memorial in the city of Washington, they were confronted at once with the difficulty of spending that large sum without producing something that would detract from the National Capitol and the Washington Monument. It was a matter of some difficulty to spend such a sum and get any adequate return upon the money without erecting something that would produce an unfavorable comparison with the Washington Monument. Finally the committee hit on the Greek temple plan, or the Greek temple plan was conceived in the minds of the Fine Arts Commission, and the committee were induced to sanction it.

"Mr. Speaker, the Greek temple form of construction is a very familiar one to architects, as I understand. It has been adapted to all kinds of public buildings, treasuries, churches, libraries, and art galleries. It has been duplicated countless times in the city of Washington and in every other great capital in the world. It will be duplicated countless times. It is the most hackneyed form of architectural art known now to architects. Architecture or art is, or should be, some expression of the age and clime which gives it birth. The Greek temple consists of a large rectangular building with a heavy, flat roof supported by columns. It is the product of a land of perpetual sunshine, where light and air are free and where the only desirable quality of the building is shade. We have transplanted that form to our land of gray skies, to a land of wintry storms, to a land of artificial light and artificial heat, and we have adapted it successfully to many public buildings.

If the designs of this art commission are carried out, we shall have a great mall reaching from here to the Washington Monument, lined on both sides with buildings of Greek temple construction, one for the Department of Commerce and Labor, one for the Department of Justice, one for the Department of the Interior, one for the Department of Agriculture. There will be perhaps six or eight great white marble Greek temples stretching down from here to the Washington Monument. Then on the other side of the Monument will be another Greek temple. If this resolution be adopted, only that Greek temple will be empty. It will contain only a heroic statue of Lincoln clad in American clothes, and it will be called a memorial to Abraham Lincoln. The Fine Arts Commission have so committed themselves to the Greek temple form of construction for Washington that they will turn every building in the Capital into a Greek temple in the course of time if their plans are carried out. Nobody would be able to tell whether that Lincoln memorial was an addition to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing or whether it was a storage place for congressional seeds until he got inside of it. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing, just now approaching completion, is a modification of the Greek temple with its heavy columns. The architectural absurdity of trying to adapt that plan to every conceivable building could not be better illustrated than in what happened at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, for in a building of that kind the most desirable thing is light, and the thing that the Greek temple excludes is light. They have actually gone to the length of moving the glass windows out to fill up the intervening spaces between the columns in order to secure the necessary light for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. I am informed, my colleagues, that your Fine Arts Commission actually drew plans for a school building in the District of Columbia in the form of the Greek temple, and when it was found it would require artificial light in the daytime for the children to study they discarded the scheme and burned up the plans. So the Greek temple, beautiful as it may be, is not adapted to every possible purpose, and certainly it is not adapted to a commemoration of a great American commoner. A week ago this day, when this matter was supposed to come up, one of the greatest artists in the country, Guston Borglum, was in the city of Washington. He is the man who molded that wonderful rugged head of Lincoln that stands in the rotunda of this Capitol, the most remarkable head of Lincoln, that has ever been produced. I take it he is an artist whose artistic criticism is of some value. Borglum said that the Greek temple project does not contain $10,000 worth of art in the whole $2,000,000 worth of appropriation. He says that is a stone mason's job. The hackneyed temple design is simply enlarged to use up the requisite amount appropriated. If Congress had appropriated $4,000,000, it could have made it twice as big. Yet that interview was taken by every reporter to the papers in Washington and went into the waste-paper basket. Borglum says the epoch of Lincoln is filled with all the marvelous tragedies of the human heart.

It shows a great people emerging from the most tremendous struggle in history to solve the great problem of self-government, and the great problem of justice and equality to the weak, and that, being vital with everything that speaks of American life and American history, has been embalmed and ossified into a Greek temple borrowed from a distant age, and a pagan age at that.

I am opposed to the Greek temple as wholly inappropriate under any aspect to express the American sentiment for Lincoln. My colleagues, this Greek temple proposition is not primarily a memorial to Lincoln at all. It is a part of a much larger scheme, called, I believe, the "McMillan plan" for the beautification, as they call it, of Washington by turning it into a vast mausoleum. If Congress had appropriated $2,000,000 for a memorial to Alexander Hamilton or Thomas Jefferson, or perhaps, as the gentlemen from Illinois suggested, Jefferson Davis, the Fine Arts Commission would have dished up the same identical Greek temple. It is not any more appropriate for Lincoln, in fact less appropriate for Lincoln, than any American that could possibly be named. It need not be assumed that these $2,000,000 of the people's money which would be expended for this useless purpose will be the end of the matter. That building will have to be heated, lighted, plumbed, furnished with caretakers, attendants, guards, watchmen, and fuel; $18,000 or $20,000 a year in the sordid civil fill will not take care of that building. It is not to be assumed that this is the end of the expense of a useless building. It is designed to commit Congress to a scheme for the purchase of property in the District and for the enlargement of the park area of the District, and for the acquisition of more or less unsalable property in the District, of which the end can not be foreseen.

Why, there is a companion bill to this, that I mentioned yesterday, which has come over from the Senate, to appropriate $2,300,000 to move the Botanical Gardens into Rock Creek Park. That is one step contemplated under the present arrangement. How much more we have no way of telling.

On the other hand, I am in favor of the roadway, not simply because it has been endorsed by the Grand Army and by organized labor, and by other American bodies, but because I believe that there is no point within reach of the National Capital which is so identified with the epoch of Lincoln and with his character and career as the great battle field of Gettysburg. When foreigners come to our shores they do not come to see how well we can imitate the temples of ancient Greece; they do not come to see how well we can copy the Sistine Madonna or the Last Supper. They come to see something vital of American life, American ideals, and American history. When Americans travel about their own country they are not to be shown copies of the art of some distant age and clime, but something that will remind them of the struggle and career and triumph of Americans, and American history and American ideals.

The most extraordinary figures have been given out in the report of the Library Committee. I can not now stop to analyze them. It is said that this road would cost $35,000,000. That is the mildest statement in this report. In my State, where we have good roads, we build them for $4,500 a mile—that is, with a 12-foot surface, with an oil binder.

If you would make this road cost $20,000 a mile, the entire cost would be less than $1,500,000. There would be given, unlimited contributions by State, by regiments, by patriotic societies, that would make this memorial to Lincoln not only a memorial to eternity but a memorial which would constantly be more and more of a memorial, and not be discarded at some future date as utterly inadequate to express the national sentiment toward Lincoln. It could be made one of the show places of America, if not the entire world.

This memorial, this beautiful boulevard, would reach from the Nation's Capital to the Nation's greatest battle field, to the culmination of that mighty struggle which solved for all time the question of the unity of the American Nation. Not a foreigner who came to our shores but would make a pilgrimage over that mighty boulevard from the Capital to the battle field or from the battle field to the Capital. Not an American citizen, not even an American schoolboy, but would feel that the longing wish of his heart was to see the great battle field of Gettysburg and then the great Capital of the Nation under whose flag he lives.

That great battle field would be an object of pleasure and interest besides being an opening of America to Americans. We send every year thousands of Americans and millions of American dollars to Europe, and yet we have more in this country to show them of natural beauty and heroic and historic triumph than they have in any country elsewhere on the civilized globe.

That boulevard would reach from the Capital to that great battle field which was immortalized not only by the burning words of Lincoln but by the dauntless heroism of the citizen soldiers of America, who on that great field for three long days, under a burning July sun, hurled themselves against each other in the greatest war of modern times, and proved to themselves and to all the world that they were one in race, one in courage, and one in destiny. [Applause.] Upon that great historic field during this current year will meet the veterans of the North and the veterans of the South, to clasp hands forever across the bloody chasm and to mark the realization and the fulfillment of the dearest wish of Abraham Lincoln—a peaceful, prosperous, reunited American Nation. [Applause.]

State Progressive Gold-bricked.

The final Penrose victory in the organization of the House came early Tuesday morning of last week when on the 15th ballot William S. Lott, Machine Republican, was elected Resident Clerk by the bare number of votes necessary to a choice. The ballot stood Leib, 108; McKean, 75; Young, 26.

Arthur McKean, of Beaver County, a Progressive Democrat with a distinguished record of public service in previous legislative sessions, was the Democratic caucus nominee. His name was substituted for that of Ailman, the previous Democratic candidate, upon the solicitation of Washington Party members and Progressive Republicans, with the promise that their strength would be thrown to McKean, thus insuring the election of a real Progressive and the defeat of the gangsters. But the Progressive Republican and Washington Party leaders were unable to "deliver the goods." A large part of their strength went to Young on every ballot, and another large part drifted to Leib on successive ballots, thus revealing the insincerity of the professions of a large element of the so-called Progressives. Their progressivism was shown to be not ingrained deep enough to permit them to elect a Progressive Democrat in preference to a Machine Republican.

In contrast to the wavering lines of the so-called Progressives the Democrats presented an almost unbroken lineup for a real Progressive candidate. There were only four Democratic deserters—Kitts, Good, Donaboe and Becker. No real Democrat will seek to defend their recreancy. There must be a black sheep or two in every family; that there are only four in a Democratic membership of 57 is a cause for congratulation to every Democrat in the State.

One of the things that must have forced genuine Progressives among the Republicans and Washington Party men to a realization of the manner in which they had played into the hands of the gangsters since the opening of the session, was the vote of Speaker Alter on the final ballot for Leib. Without Alter's vote the machine candidate would have failed of election on this ballot.

In spite of his pretensions of progressivism, Alter has thus far in the session proved an entirely dependable ally of the machine. His vote was registered for Roll Padder Garvin for Chief Clerk and now, when most needed, it is given to the notorious Leib. Alter, too, is responsible for the lack of cohesion among the Progressive Republicans which has made all the machine triumphs possible. His stand against a caucus, so loudly heralded as a rebuke of boss rule, was in reality, as events have since proved, a big help to the gangsters. The pitiful spectacle of impotency presented by the Progressive Republicans thus far in the session shows that conferences such as the Democrats have held from the beginning are absolutely necessary for the securing of united action on any course or measure. After playing into the hands of the old machine and losing the organization of the House, the Progressives now admit their mistake by following the example of the Democrats in this regard.

Good Nature in Cartoons.

In the February "Century" Frank Weitenkamp discusses "American Cartoons of To-day." Noteworthy features in a large proportion of newspaper cartoons, he says, have been the very general good nature, the absence on the whole, of vulgarity,—which cannot be said of all the non-political newspaper "comics."—the almost boyish delight in the fun of the thing, the good humored clownishness. The fiercely corrective function of the cartoon is not too often apparent to-day. The prevailing spirit is that of kindness, not of malignity. Occasions of particularly strong public excitement may promote bitterness, and in the Spanish-American War there blossomed some unpleasant products of inconsiderate national prejudice. But the sustained savagery of a Gillray, the unrelenting probing of a Nast, as in the Greeley campaign, or even such insistent flaying as was seen in the Blaine-Cleveland contest of 1884, are to-day a rarity.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged. This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

We have sold other remedies for skin

FOUND DYING IN THE SNOWDANIEL B. MARTIN SUCCUMBS TO EXPOSURE

A Faithful Dog Stood Watch over his Master for Many Hours.

Almost buried in the snow and guarded by his faithful dog, Daniel B. Martin, Charming, formerly a merchant at Fountaindale and Charming, was found in a dying condition near Beuna Vista station, last Wednesday afternoon. The aged man died soon afterward in the Beuna Vista post office to which his body was removed. Martin left his home Tuesday noon, stating that he was going to take a short walk. His family heard nothing more of him until Wednesday afternoon when he was found. He spent the afternoon near Lake Royer and started home in the evening. It is believed that he lost his way and in the fury of the snow storm which swept over that section, early Wednesday morning, wandered aimlessly about in the mountain until he became so weak and fatigued that he could battle with the elements no longer. He fell upon the ground and was soon overcome by the cold. He was found lying face downward, Wednesday afternoon by Norman L. Harbaugh, who was walking up the path toward the store. Harbaugh asked him what he was doing. Waiting awhile for an answer and receiving none he again inquired what he was doing. A slight quiver from the semi-conscious man's lips was the only response. Looking about for some assistance, Harbaugh noticed Stanley Wise and C. W. Smith walking down the path toward them. The three men placed Martin upon a sled, which was nearby, and when they reached the postoffice there was still a trace of life. Dr. Charles Beck, Highfield, was immediately summoned but before he arrived the man had died without regaining consciousness. Remaining close by the body of his dead master to the very end, his little dog whined piteously when removed from his side. All through the night and up to the time Mr. Martin's body was found, the dog stood watch, while the snow fell, for almost a dozen hours and the cold grew more severe. Mr. Martin was 67 years old and for a number of years was engaged in the mercantile business in Fountaindale and Charming. He is survived by his widow and the following children: Howard, Charles S., Carl F., C. S., and Hazel M., all at home, and one sister, Mrs. Daniel Frey of Fountaindale.

Wm. E. McSHERRY, born and reared in East Berlin, but a resident of Philadelphia from early manhood, died December last, aged 67 years. He was the son of Hugh McSherry, and brother of Michael McSherry, deceased, having had also two sisters, Mrs. H. L. Miller, who died last fall, and Mrs. G. W. Welsh, of Hanover, who died many years ago. At the age of about 18 yrs. he became a traveling salesman for James, Kent, Santee & Co., a leading wholesale drygoods firm of Philadelphia, which business he followed during all his life, having been up to the time of his last illness employed by the firm of Schoolhouse & Son, of New York City, silk importers. In his earlier business life he made at least annual visits to his home town and will be remembered as a gentleman of good social qualities and an attractive personality. He was a successful business man and frequently made large sales of goods to the different merchants of East Berlin. The firm he last served had a card struck announcing his death in which it is stated: "It is with deep sorrow that we announce the death of W. E. McSherry, at his home in Philadelphia. His genial disposition and his other admirable qualities won for him many friends. Mr. McSherry was in our employ many years, and in his death we have lost a most faithful and devoted employee." His death was due chiefly to valvular heart trouble, having been confined to his bed about two weeks, though his health failed him some months before. He married a lady of Philadelphia, who survives with a son, Wm. R., a daughter, Florence—the children being twins—having died the September previous to his own death, which loss he greatly lamented. The Telephone Saved a Life

"We were all pretty much worried when John Halsey, one of our men, was badly crushed at the ice house.

"I telephoned Dr. Grimes. He told us how to patch John up, and started for our place in a hurry.

"When he arrived the man was pretty weak and the doctor said if we hadn't called him and done just as we did it would have resulted very seriously. Thanks to the telephone, he pulled through."

How It Was Thrown Between Two Girls

By EMMA ALDRICH

Mulbridge was one of those men who are so dead set in their ways that they are liable to overreach themselves. He was so anxious to get rich that he wouldn't marry lest the expense of a family would prevent his accomplishing his object. When he had accumulated a fortune he found himself without a chick or a child in the world to pass it on to. Then it was a splendid property, consisting of houses and lands. He couldn't enjoy it himself. He was too old. If he had a son he might be interested during his last days teaching the boy how to take care of it and at his death see it pass into the possession of his own flesh and blood.

But, not having a son or a child at all, he set himself to make such provision as would insure the passage of his estate to one of his nieces. If he had had a nephew he would have left it to him. But he hadn't a nephew, and of his two nieces, one, the daughter of his sister Anna, was but twelve; the other, the daughter of his sister Elizabeth, thirteen. Had he not been so wrapped up in his fortune as a whole and desirous of having it go as a whole to a descendant he would have left half of it to one niece and half to the other. But his object was to provide for it remaining undivided rather than to make any person or persons happy. Indeed, he didn't wish to make any one happy. It was his delight to make persons miserable. Not exactly that either: he loved to set them at odds. He would sell the same thing to or buy it from two different persons, then set them to quarreling over which should have the preference, while he looked on without taking any part in the wrangling.

Like most persons who wish to indirectly retain the management of their property after death, Mulbridge made a will with that intent. He left his estate in the hands of a trustee till his niece, Alice Mortimer, and her younger cousin, Sadie Brown, should have passed twenty years of age. On the latter's twentieth birthday at 12 o'clock noon the trustee was to announce in presence of both girls that the one first married should inherit the whole of his estate. His main object was to do all he could toward having a posthumous grandnephew, and he further tied up the estate so that it should go to the first son born to the niece who should win it.

And so it came about that Misses Alice Mortimer and Sadie Brown grew up neither of them knowing that when Sadie should reach her twentieth birthday they would be called upon to hurry for a husband or lose a fortune. It may be supposed that had they been informed of the terms of their uncle's will each would have provided a man for the occasion. But it is questionable if this is so. Miss Mortimer was an incorrigible flirt, and it is doubtful if even the contingent possession of wealth would enable her to make up her mind between several men she had dangled about her. Miss Brown was a demure little body, and since it would be necessary for her to intimate to some man that she would like him to marry her it is quite likely that she would lose the inheritance.

Mulbridge died a year before this birthday of Sadie Brown on which hung half a million dollars. His trustee, John Andrews, who by the terms of the will was to be well paid out of the estate for keeping the secret, succeeded admirably in holding his tongue and a few days before Miss Brown's birthday notified the parties interested that a bequest of their uncle, Martin Mulbridge, in which they were concerned would be made known to them. They were to come to the trustee's office half an hour before noon that there might be no slip in compliance with the law.

The cousins had not been near neighbors and scarcely knew each other. Both arrived at the trustee's office promptly at 11:30 o'clock and greeted each other in a friendly manner. Indeed, they had reason to be pleased with the situation, as they supposed it to be, for it was to be inferred that each was to come in for a nice share of Uncle Martin's estate. They sat chatting till the clocks began to strike 12, when the trustee entered from his private office with the Mulbridge will in his hand and, muting the red tape about it, read them the document. When he had finished he said to them: "Young ladies, you have heard the provisions of the will. If either of you marries it will be to your interest to request the clergyman who marries you to carefully note the hour, minute and second and make affidavit to that effect before a notary or such person as is authorized to take acknowledgments."

The two girls sat gazing at the trustee for a few moments; then Miss Mortimer began to quiver with excitement, while her cousin took on a bewildered look. It was an abnormal situation for any man to bring about between two estimable girls, and no one but a crochety old skinflint would have thought of such a thing.

Up jumps Miss Mortimer and leaves the room, bent on finding one of her lovers, marrying him and appropriating the inheritance. Miss Brown seemed dazed and remained in her chair, apparently not understanding just what had happened or, if she did, not knowing what in the world to do about it. Neither of the girls was fitted to make a good showing in such a race, Miss Mortimer having so many men she could marry that it would be next to impossible to decide between them and Miss Brown being so retiring that she was incapable by nature of asking a man to marry her.

Miss Mortimer had very little doubt that she could easily win. There was Tom Scovill, who had been begging her to marry him for months. There was Bob Hackstaff, whom she wanted but had not been able to get because he preferred Julia Green. Ned Tucker had been buzzing about her lately, and she thought it would be no trouble to bring him to the point. Indeed, it was not likely but that she could induce almost any of them to marry her, especially if she told them that by doing so he would get a fortune. But there were obstacles in the way of quick work. In the first place, the only one of the lot she wanted was Bob Hackstaff. But Bob, in addition to preferring Julia Green, was an independent sort of a fellow, and she had heard him say that the last thing he would do would be to tie himself up to some woman's fortune, to have it continually thrown in his face.

"I wonder," mused Miss Mortimer, "if there will be time for me to see Bob and find out how he would feel about it. I'm afraid there won't be. That little cousin of mine may be too retiring to hunt up a husband, but that kind of a girl is easily hunted, and as soon as it gets out that if she marries before me she'll get a fortune there'll be a dozen men offering to marry her. Every one of them will swear he has loved her since she was a baby, and she'll believe every word of it."

Then she thought of the half million that might be hers and what she might do with it—how live, how dress and the admiration it would bring to her. No, she wouldn't send for Bob. It would be a loss of valuable time to no purpose. Why, just think of it—every ten minutes might be worth a hundred thousand dollars! While she was deliberating her cousin might be picked up by some designing man.

A pile of money is always an object of attack. Old Mulbridge, with all his shrewdness and foresight, though he could keep secret the conditions of the inheritance from his nieces till the proper moment, could not keep it from all men. The trustee had it and acted upon it. He didn't want the inheritance for himself. Indeed, he couldn't have it, for he was married already. He didn't wait it for his son, for he had no son. But when he saw little Miss Brown sitting in his office without any sign to be up and stirring to secure a fortune he bethought himself how he could help her and a nice young fellow who was his clerk.

Henry Forsythe was hunting over some lawbooks when his employer entered and said to him:

"Henry, there's a girl in the other room who, if she can be married at once, will win a fortune. Have you got a sweetheart?"

"No, Mr. Andrews; I haven't."

"Well, come in there and I'll introduce you."

Forsythe was presented in due form, but since time was precious Mr. Andrews thought proper to state to the parties concerned what it was in their power to do—what it might be their interest to do. Then, shutting the door, he left them together. But, taking time by the forelock, he sent out a clerkman, and there was a notary in the office.

Half an hour passed, and, bearing no word from the couple in the other room, he called out: "Time is precious. Half a million at stake."

Ten minutes more elapsed, when Mr. Andrews put his head out of the window and saw a carriage dash up and stop at the door below. Out jumped Miss Mortimer and a young man. The elevator was at the top of the building at the moment, and some time must pass before the couple could come up. Throwing open the door where he had shut up Forsythe and Miss Brown, he surprised Forsythe imprinting a kiss on Miss Brown's lips.

"Time's up," cried the trustee. "Come here, Mr. Parsons. Hurry up. Marry these two at once!"

When Miss Mortimer and Mr. Thomas Scovill, whom she had decided as the only person she might marry in a hurry, reached Mr. Andrews' office, they found him just coming from an adjoining room and announced that they were ready to be married.

"There's a clergyman here," replied the lawyer, "who has just performed the marriage ceremony in the case of your cousin. I don't say he'll be happy to marry you as well."

"My cousin married!" exclaimed Miss Mortimer.

"Just married?"

She sank in a chair and covered her face with her hands.

"Sweetheart!" said she would be room, "so can be happy without this fortune. I'll—"

"Get on!"

If the shade of old Mulbridge looked down on this scene which he had contrived it must have been with supreme happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe, notwithstanding their hurried courtship, lived happily together, spending a good deal of the income on the poor, which Mulbridge would have deprecated. But they had a son to inherit the property which the old rascal had provided for.

High Priced Poems.

What is the highest price ever paid by a publisher for a poem? It would be interesting to know whether any advance has ever been made on the £3,000 ($15,000) that Scott received for "Rokeby." Stephen Gwynn, in his "Life of Moore," tells us that Murray offered 2,000 guineas for the copyright of "Lalla Rookh," but Moore's friends thought he should have more and, going to Longman, they claimed that Mr. Moore should receive no less than the highest price ever paid for a poem. "That," said Longman, "was £3,000, paid for 'Rokeby.'" On this basis they treated, and Longman was inclined to stipulate for a preliminary perusal. Moore, however, refused, and the agreement was finally worded, "That upon your giving into our hands a poem of the length of 'Rokeby' you shall receive from us the sum of £3,000."—London Chronicle.

The Alps Will Be Washed Away.

The Alps, from a geological point of view, are very recent. The Welsh hills, though, comparatively speaking, insignificant, are far more ancient. They had been mountains for ages and ages before the materials which now compose the Rigi or the Pilatus were deposited. Indeed, we may say that it is because they are so old that they have been so much worn down. The Alps themselves are crumbling and being washed away, and if no fresh elevation takes place the time will come when they will be no loftier than Snowdon or Helvellyn. They have already undergone enormous denudation, and it has been shown that from the summit of Mont Blanc some 10,000 or 12,000 feet of strata have been already removed. Denudation began as soon as the land rose above the sea and the main river valleys were excavated.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Word "Lubber."

The word "lubber" is in "Ralph Roister Doister," circa 1550, iii, 3. And where he is louted and laughed to scorn. For the veriest dolt that ever was born. And the veriest lubber, sloven and beast. Living in the world from the west to the east.

Tusser uses the word in "Five Hundred Pointes of Good Husbandrie," 1559, page 131 (E. D. S.):

For tempests and showers decleuth a menle. And lingering lubbers loose many a penle.

The word "lubbers" was in constant use in the sixteenth century and occurs at least twice in Udall's translation of Erasmus' "Aphorismes." Almost 200 years before this Langland told of the "grete lubres and longe" who were too idle to work.—London Notes and Queries.

Not For Fashion's Sake.

The criminal law of England was formerly marked by indiscriminating severity. Theft of an article valued above 10 shillings was punished with death. In writing about "Sweet Hampstead and Its Associations" Mrs. White records a pleasant thing of Lord Mansfield, who as a rule leaned to the side of mercy. It was Lord Mansfield who directed a jury to find a stolen trinket less in value than 10 shillings in order that the thief might escape capital punishment. To this the jeweler who prosecuted demurred, asserting that the fashion of the thing had cost him twice that money.

"Gentlemen," replied the judge, with grave solemnity, "we ourselves stand in need of mercy. Let us not hang a man for the fashion's sake."

A Growsome Wedding Present.

Among the Brass river tribes of west Africa when a young couple get married it is the custom for the oldest member of the bride's family to present the bride with a plot of ground six feet long. This is for the grave of her family and herself when they die. The first member of the new family who dies is buried about twenty feet below the ground and the next one almost sixteen feet, and this goes on until all the family die and are buried. The grave holds them all, and this, they think, prevents them from being separated. This growsome wedding present is the one most valued by the bride, the favorite native saying being, "When all other things are gone this remains."

The Wasted Witicism.

"I always thought," said the hostess, "that Scotchmen were humorous. One night I showed a departing Scotch guest a great pile of overcoats in the dressing room."

"Here," I said, with a wave of my hand, "you are the first to leave. Take your choice."

"Thank you," said he as he fumbled searchingly among them; "I'll have me own."—Exchange.

Road Legislative Program.

It is not the intention to omit from the program for highway legislation in the general assembly of 1913 provision for the construction of highways by State-aid, which has been a feature of the constructive work of this branch of the State government for the past nine years. During meetings of various organizations in Harrisburg in the last fortnight fears were expressed that this method of construction might be done away with but assurance has been given in authoritative quarters that due allowance for State-aid is to be made.

It was said on several occasions during the recent meetings that the object of highway legislation this session would be solely for the construction and maintenance of the main State highways designated by the act of 1911. This is not the case. The plan is to build such highways out of the proceeds of the $50,000,000 bond issue, which appears to be generally favored throughout the State, as the most economical and satisfactory method of securing the money for this purpose. The State highways being thus provided for will not interfere in any way with the State-aid work or the distribution of funds to townships for local road improvement or as bonus for abolition of the archaic work tax.

In the act of 1911 a specific appropriation of $1,000,000 was made for the building of roads by State-aid, the commonwealth to bear fifty per cent. of the cost and the remainder to be divided between the county applying for State-aid and the township or borough where the road was to be built. This plan it is proposed to preserve and to make a liberal appropriation to carry it out. Over 400 applications for State-aid were made during 1912, and it is expected, from the interest displayed in a number of counties, that fully as many may be made during 1913. The enactment of the bond issue amendment to the constitution would really do much toward a more liberal policy in State-aid and in assistance to local districts, for it would relieve the legislature of the necessity of providing for the main State highway construction out of the current revenues of the commonwealth.
